Summary/Objective of the project	Gwalior district is of the prime district of the Chambal ghati and central hub for the nearby districts. The cultural and demographic situation is against the female issues and past two decade has shown drastic decline in the sex ratio. During initial study of the PCPNDT Act and its implementation, it was found that there is large scale under reporting and false reporting. The onus of creating a sonography record lies on the sonologist and cases of suspected sex selection are not recorded. Hence there was no system in place to authorities to cross check the sonographies conducted in the district. Another issue was false reporting. Similar to under reporting, the concern was doctors used to fake the report such as actual pregnancy was 16 weeks, but doctor writes 8 weeks. There was no mechanism to cross check the actual status of the pregnancy during sonography. Becos of such issues the authorities were unable to get the basic evidence required for any action and were only dependent on sting operations which was a tough task and possibility of conviction was limited. Apart from these two, there were other issues as well like minimum staff with authorities and manual processing of the forms resulting lots of time and man power requirements. HAMARI LADLI project solves all these issues with innovative use of Information Technology . This project helps in effective implementation of PCPNDT act through innovative use of ICT technology. The project is aimed at controlling the illegal sex determination followed by female foeticide. So major beneficiaries of the project are yet to born BABY GIRL . This project woks efficiently and effectively to save Baby girls in the society . Other beneficiaries of the project are Administration who can implement the act more effectively , owners of ultrasound centers who are benefited by online submission of data and mosr importantly the pregnant women. The entire community is benefited with a balance of sex ratio.
